THIS WEEK'S LEARNING WALK
FOCUS:

Questioning

Snowballs

Students write down a question they are unsure of on a piece of paper. It is then thrown across the room. Students then pick up the nearest one before throwing it back to the owner.

Egg-ceptional Teaching and Learning Ideas

Question Cards

Try not to answer the student's questions. You could allow students one question per lesson. They have a card and when they have used it they must use other means to work out the answer.

Captions

Show students photos and ask them to come up with a caption/newspaper headline for that photo.

The Bumps

Try not to answer the student's questions. You could allow students one question per lesson. They have a card and when they have used it they must use other means to work out the answer.

What's the Question?

Put the answer to a question on the board and the students have to guess what the question was. A nice starter activity.

Speed Draw

Give students a topic to draw in one minute and see how much of it they can complete. E.g. draw a titration experiment, draw a heart, and draw the town centre.
